

Third Annual Retreat

Friday, March 31, 2023 | 10:00 AM– 5:00 PM EST

Warren Alpert Medical School of Brown University, 222 Richmond Street, Providence, RI
(virtual participation available)

To Register: cme-learning.brown.edu/CCC19Retreat2023

Program Description

The COVID-19 and Cancer Consortium (CCC19) consists of over 120 cancer centers and other organizations who have come together to collect data about patients with cancer who have been diagnosed with COVID-19. The driving goal of the CCC19 consortium is to collect and disseminate prospective, granular, uniformly organized information on people with cancer who are diagnosed with COVID-19 – at scale and as rapidly as possible.

The third annual retreat aims to brainstorm on our collective understanding of COVID-19 and cancer throughout the continued complex evolution of the COVID-19 pandemic, via lectures, panel discussions and presented research from prominent thought leaders both within and outside the consortium. Please know non-members are welcome to attend.

Target Audience

Physicians, nurse practitioners, residents, and fellows involved in the care of patients with COVID-19 and cancer.

Learning Objectives
